

Alexander & Thomas Huber

Thomas and Alexander Huber are an extraordinary team. Each one of them is among the best alpinists in the world, together, they are one of the strongest rope parties of our time.

The similarities are obvious. Having grown up together as brothers, they share the same roots and the many adventures they had together. Both are extremely motivated athletes. They both achieved great success on their own, but they are particularly proud of the goals they reached together:

What sets the Huberbuam's successes apart is not the pure difficulty of their accomplishments, it is the vision they have for their sport. The brain is the climber's most important muscle - what's the strongest biceps if you lack vision? Only the visionary has the skill to develop new ideas, the incentive to follow these dreams, and the will to take alpinism further.
